The tournament builds further on the vision of AEGEAN’s founder Theodore Vassilakis and Costa Navarino’s founder Captain Vassilis Constantakopoulos, to grow the game of golf in Greece.

The event marked the first time that the two new José María Olazábal-designed courses at Navarino Hills – the world’s first International Olympic Academy Golf Course and The Hills Course – were used in competition, since opening in February.

After some memorable individual and team play under sunny September skies, PGA of Austria Professional, Georg Schultes took top professional honours following the conclusion of the 54-hole tournament, which also featured The Dunes Course.

Schultes, who took victory with a winning score of 10-under-par, said: “It’s amazing to win. This week has been so easy for us all, thanks to the organisers who took care of us so well. My team of amateurs have really loved their time here – the views from some of these holes are amazing.”

The Team Pro-Am event honours were taken by the team of PGA of Greece Professional, Christos Nikopoulos, and teammates, Maksym Kutkovskyy, Maryna Kutkovska and Aris Vovos with a total of 263 points (-47) after a battle that came down to the very last hole of the event.

As well as enjoying golf across three of Costa Navarino’s four signature 18-hole golf courses, the pro-am offered the opportunity for the players to forge new friendships by day and night at an array of events.

As part of a rich programme of evening events, participants enjoyed the breathtaking sunset views from The Hills Clubhouse during the ‘All in One’ themed welcome cocktail and danced the night away at the theme party night ‘Let’s Swing Again’ with a live swing band.
